HOW SMALL CAN THEY GO – These carry only a short web address, so the pattern is simple and stays readable down to about 20 mm. Anything below that and phones begin to struggle.

WHAT HAPPENS ON SCAN – The camera shows the address, the visitor taps it, and the card page opens with Save to contacts, WhatsApp and Email buttons on it. They still end up with the full contact, one tap later.

Backup: offline contact codes

THESE SAVE THE CONTACT DIRECTLY – NO WEB PAGE INVOLVED

WHEN TO REACH FOR THESE – Scanning one of these opens the phone's Add Contact screen straight away, with no web page and no internet connection needed. Useful at venues with no signal, and permanent in a way a web address can never be.

WHY THEY ARE NOT THE DEFAULT – The whole card sits inside the pattern, so the code is dense and needs 35 mm or more of print space. They also skip the branded card page entirely.

Notes

READ ONCE, THEN THROW THIS PAGE AWAY

WHAT THESE CODES DO – Every code on pages one, two and three opens that person's card page at <https://uxdanish.github.io/bizskoop-cards>, where the visitor can save the contact, message on WhatsApp or send an email.

BEFORE A BIG PRINT RUN – Print one page and scan every code with both an iPhone and an Android camera. A phone cannot read a code shown on its own screen, so use paper or a second device.
